THE LADIE$

I've taken my fun where I've found it;
I've rogued an' I've ranged in my time;
I've 'ad my pickin' o' sweethearts,
An' four o' the lot was prime.
One was an 'arf-caste widow,
One was a woman at Prome,
One was the wife of a jemadar-sais,
An' one is a girl at 'ome.

Now I aren't no' and with the ladies,
For, takin' 'em all along,
You never can say till you've tried 'em,
An' then you are like to be wrong.
There's times when you'll think that you mightn't
There's times when you'll know that you might;
But the things you will learn from the Yellow an'
Brown,
They'll 'elp you a lot with the White!

I was a young un at 'Oogli,
Shy as a girl to begin;
Aggie de Castrer she made me,
An' Aggie was clever as sin;
Older than me, but my first un—
More like a mother she were—
Showed me the way to promotion an' pay,
An' I learned about women from 'er!

Then we was shifted to Neemuch
(Or I might ha' been keepin' 'er now),
An' I took with a shiny she-devil,
The wife of a nigger at Mhow;
'Taught me the gipsy-folks' bolee;
Kind 'o volcano she were,
For she knifed me one night 'cause I wished she was white,
And I learned about women from 'er!

Then I come 'ome in a trooper,

Petal, Miss.

I have jotted down a few scattered thoughts and hope they will be of help to someone, if you would care to print them.

---

We Americans have grown top heavy as they did in Rome. So, we are either going to have to revise our government and taxes and make things simpler or we too will fall and crumble.

You can go so far on credit and stay in the red just so long. When government demands of its middle classes practically all their time and money and leaves no room for individuals, that causes them to loose their iniative, or steal. So we are lost either way. More and more small businesses are having to abdicate to large concerns or not make enough to live—just live—food, clothing, etc.

The expression, "living day by day, hour by hour, moment by moment," has more significance than most of us give it.

Lives are saved by living them moment by moment, while lives are ruined because of wrong living only a minute or two.

Tragedies have been healed by living hour by hour, while many tragedies have occurred because some one lived wrongly one hour.

But, if we have a burden and will forget the tomorrows and live only each day with God's help, what a wonderful life we have regardless of tragedies.

Living means more than food, shelter, and going through the movements of the day. It means letting your senses receive stimuli from your surroundings and then recording them on your brain.

Degrees of Nullification

The rising debate over "interposition" can be a very useful thing. It is always good when Americans examine the roots and meaings of their Constitution. Moreover, nationwide understanding of southern resistance to desegregation may be enhanced by the citing of cases where northern resistance to federal action reached the stage of nullification.

Yet it should be obvious that nullification provides no sound basis for national life. Indeed, carried far, it becomes a recipe for chaos. That is one reason most of those—from the Kentuckians and Virginians who balked at the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798 to the four southern governors who have just announced a united front to oppose desegregation—have sought a pleasanter word.

"Interposition" is also an accurate word. For it describes the doctrine that the states have a right to interpose their citizens from federal action which they believe unconsititional. The basic concept here is that the Union was formed by a compact among the states under which powers "not delegated" to the federal government "are reserved to the states, respectively, or to the people."

The view that the states can say what powers are reserved has persisted. In 1814 the Hartford Convention, composed of delegates representing New York and the New England states, denounced the conduct of the War of 1812 as infringing the rights of citizens and reaffirmed the Jefferson-Madison doctrine of interposition.

It also declared that the states "must be their own judges and execute their own decisions." The threat was not carried out because the war soon ended, the right of the Supreme Court to hear a claim against it and refused to pay. Wisconsin, just before the war which vetoed the right of secession, nullified the Dred Scott decision.

In these cases interposition was carried to its logical conclusion—effective defiance of federal power—and became nullification. But these are exceptions that prove the rule. Indeed, the general course of American constitutional history gives small place to interposition. Moreover, the record does not support the view that only the states are defenders of individual rights. It has often been the other way round—as many people believe it is in the segregation issue.

When citizens contend that they have a right to choose the kind of schools—white, black, or mixed—to which they will send their children they are basing themselves on individual liberties. And there is a legitimate constitutional argument that the integration question should have been decided by constitutional amendment rather than by court interpretation. There may also be a chance that the Supreme Court—under its order for lower courts to carry out the integration decision with due regard to local conditioss and rules of equity—would accept mild forms of interposition.

But it is unlikely that either the court or national opinion will be won by open defiance amounting to nullification. (The Alabama Legislature is reported to have adopted a resolution declaring the decision "null and void.") Nor will constitutional government be fostered by ugly attacks on the members and motives of the Supreme Court. We are glad to see that calmer voices are being raised in the South to check the

Farm Hands And Domestic Help Not Covered Under Minimum Wage Law

Dozens of complaints are being received from puzzled Mississippi workers who cannot understand why they are not yet receiving $1 per hour, according to Wallace S. MacNicholl, investigation supervisor of the U. S. Labor Department's Wage-Hour field office here.

In addition to the complaints, inquiries come from housewives, working mothers, and many farmers who want to know about their responsibilities under the law, he said.

MacNicholl explained that the problem involves two large groups: In the home there are the hosehold servants, nurse maids and cooks; on the farms there are cotton choppers, harvesters of spring crops, those who do the spring plowing, and many other agricultural laborers.

"Payment of the $1 per-hour federal minimum wage is not required to any of these workers," he stated. He added that some of the activities named were under the general coverage provisions of the law, but specific exemptions had the effect of nullifying coverage.

He said that, simply stated, "domestic help and farm labor are not under the law," and that "housewives and farmers are net required to pay the new rate which went into effect March 1."

MacNicholl warned that most farmers are prohibited from employing children under 16 years of age during school hours for the district in which the child lives, but said that this is a separate provision and has no effect on the rate which is paid.

An' I learned about women from 'er!

Then we was shifted to Neemuch
(Or I might ha' been keepin' 'er now),
An' I took with a shiny she-devil,
The wife of a nigger at Mhow;
'Taught me the gipsy-folks' bolee;
Kind 'o volcano she were,
For she knifed me one night 'cause I wished she was white,
And I learned about women from 'er!

Then I come 'ome in a trooper,
'Long of a kid o' sixteen—
'Girl from a convent at Meerut,
The straightest I ever 'ave seen.
Love at first sight was 'er trouble,
She didn't know what it were;
An' I wouldn't do such, 'cause I liked 'er too much,
But—I learned about women from 'er!

I've taken my fun where I've found it,
An' now I must pay for my fun,
For the more you 'ave known o' the others
The less you will settle to one;
An' the end of it's sittin' and thinkin',
An' dreamin' Hell-fires to see;
So be warned by my lot (which I know you will not),
An' learn about women from me!

What did the Colonel's Lady think?
Nobody never knew.
Somebody asked the Sergeant's Wife,
An' she told 'em true!
When you get to a man in the case,
They're like as a row of pins—
For the Colonel's Lady an' Judy O'Grady
Are sisters under their skins!

"Flaming youth of today is constantly burning tobacco, gasoline and the candle at both ends," states a news filler. Yeah, and money, too.

There are many who find their backs to the wall for a simple reason. They failed to read the handwriting on it. (It says here.)

An official of the Federal Government is quoted as having said, "I'm not prepared to evaluate the various ramifications and significance of this situation." That's the educated way of saying, "I wish I knew what the heck it's all about."

It has been said that a pat on the back will work wonders with an obstreperous child. Such is true, as has been proven around our house . . . just make the pat low enough.

I reported a few weeks back about the sunspots causing trouble with television and radio. Seems to me the Democrats aren't wide awake—this would be something good to blame on the Republicans.

Say what you like about the economy of this nation, but the fact remains that living costs haven't varied much. As far back as history records it has cost more to live than anyone could afford.

many tragedies have occurred because some one lived wrongly one hour.

But, if we have a burden and will forget the tomorrows and live only each day with God's help, what a wonderful life we have regardless of tragedies.

Living means more than food, shelter, and going through the movements of the day. It means letting your senses receive stimuli from your surroundings and then recording them on your brain.

The difference between an educated and uneducated person is not so much the going through the motion of going to school. It is recording on the brain certain things so they will always be there for knowledge. The only difference between a self made person and one that had a chance at the best is whether they recorded facts so they could use them. You can go through life and never really see, hear, or understand anything unless you put forth the effort to learn.

People that think they can sit on the fence and side with which ever factor comes by the fence are deluded. You either declare for God or you are working for the devil. You either declare for law and order or you are working for hoodlums. You either declare for dry and don't slip around and drink or you are wet. You declare for individualism or you are for the mob.

Those that think they can force an individual, regardless of his color, heredity, and beliefs, to be bound by force have departed from God's conception of individualism.

God created the white and also the black. He gave them different ideas and concepts. Since the white's ideas are more advanced, why force him to accept the lowered ones of the Negro?

When the Negro has advanced morally and mentaly he has always been accepted for his ability. But, he has first to educate himself physically, spiritually, and mentally.

Why do we teach our children to be careful with their associates, that birds of a feather flock together, and that you become what you will be because of your associates and books you associate with? There is class distinction among whites. A Christian is no more atease with a confirmed worker for the devil that the worker is with the Christian. That does not mean the Christian will not pray and try to do what he can for the sinner. But as a rule, the sinner doesn't want public prayer and public attention brought to the difference of the two.

So, why force a white and black to associate if they don't care to? When whites want different things they move. If Negroes want to move to the North that is their privilege. If whites of the North want to move South, that is their privilege. If a white feels he wants to associate with Colored that is his privilege, but why force?

The Romans forced and their power died. As sure as America forces this thing on the South, she is writing her death warrant.

All Christian, praying people should read their Bibles carefully and pray for guidance from God and not from the words of the politicians.

Name withheld by request.

the people."

The view that the states can say what powers are reserved has persisted. In 1814 the Hartford Convention, composed of delegates representing New York and the New England states, denounced the conduct of the War of 1812 as infringing the rights of citizens and reaffirmed the Jefferson-Madison doctrine of interposition.

It also declared that the states "must be their own judges and execute their own decisions." The threat was not carried out because the war soon ended, but two other states did go to the stage of action. Georgia in 1792 didn't talk about "interposition"; it simply denied out the integration decision with due regard to local conditioss and rules of equity—would accept mild forms of interposition.

But it is unlikely that either the court or national opinion will be won by open defiance amounting to nullification. (The Alabama Legislature is reported to have adopted a resolution declaring the decision "null and void.") Nor will constitutional government be fostered by ugly attacks on the members and motives of the Supreme Court. We are glad to see that calmer voices are being raised in the South to check the extremists who would carry interposition into revolt.—(The Christian-Science Monitor.)

Interposition

There was more wind than precipitation in the storm blown up by the four Southern Governors in their meeting at Richmond to discuss "interposition." This is the doctrine that has been dredged up from pre-Civil War days for opposition to the Supreme Court decision forbidding public school segregation. In its extreme form it would mean outright defiance—that is, the "interposing" of state sovereignty between the Supreme Court and the effect of its decision on the people. This, of course, would amount to nullification. Significantly, however, there was a conspicious avoidance of nullification talk at Richmond. From present indications the practical result of the resolutions of interposition to be supported by the Governors, as well as of those in the Virginia Assembly, will be merely to register a strong protest.

Now, a strong protest against the Supreme Court decision is certainly within the rights of any group. But an attempt to carry out actual interposition, which would mean nullification, would be foredoomed to bitter failure. For the theory rests on a distortion of history. It goes on the assumption that the Constitution was a compact between the states and that the states never surrenedered their "right" to operate separate schools. But the Constitution was far more than a mere compact between undiminished sovereignties; it was the Charter for a Nation. History, and historical usage in interpretation of the Constitution by the Supreme Court, have long since overruled nullification.

As Irving Brant, related in this newspaper last Sunday, Madison, whose views are cited to support interposition, actually opposed precisely this sort of gimmick with all the power in him. Jefferson, who also has been quoted in support of nullification, spoke of a natural right to nullify—meaning revolution. Do supporters of interposition, who omit the key word natural, contemplate revolution or secession as a practical possibility? Obviously not.

It requires little imagination to see the pernicious effects of this doctrine if it were to obtain a foothold. There would be a chaos of competing "sovereignties" seeking to nullify actions with which they disagreed, and it would be impossible to operate a Nation. That is the primary reason why interposition could not succeed. The Civil War settled the fact that the United States is a union, and the Supreme Court's rulings are the law of the land unless and until the situation is changed by national legislation or deliberate constitutional amendment. A mere exercise in legalism over interposition probably is of no great harm, but the sad thing is that it serves to distract attention from the gradual but inevitable compliance which the states know is their obligation as members of the Union—Washington Post and Times Herald.

Selective Service Sets Special Tests For 17th

A special Selective Service College Qualification Test will be held on Thursday, May 17, 1956, for those students, who for reasons beyond their control, were unable to take the regularly scheduled tests on November 17, 1955 and April 19, 1956, Colonel John W. Patton, State Director of Selective Service for Mississippi, announced today.

Colonel Patton stated that applications for the May 17, 1956, test must be postmarked not later than midnight May 7, 1956.

The special test wil be administered by Science Reserch Associates, Inc., of Chicago which has established approximately 1,000 testing centers at colleges and universities throughout the United States and in Alaska, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. A list of these testing centers may be obtained by registrants from any Selective Service Local Board.

In order to be eligible to apply for the special test to be given on May 17, 1956, a student need ont have applied for one of the previous tests.

Colonel Patton stated that applicants for the special test will receive assistance in filling out their application cards from the local board clerks.

ALONG THE R. F. D.

By Rose Budd Stevens

Who couldn't be happy in April? When skies smile one minute and the next are hidden under a soft grey cloud that promises showers to bring the flowers of May. Not that an extra flower is needed for on every hillside and valley a carpet of blooms greets the eye.

I like the April showers; they last only a few minutes and how beautiful everything looks for the next day or so; freshly washed and gleaming.

APRIL RAIN

It is not raining rain to me,
It's raining daffodils,
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers o nthe hills.
The clouds of grey engulf the day
And overwhelm the town;
It is not raining rain to me,
It is raining roses down.
It is not raining rai to me,
But fields o fclover bloom
Where any buccaneering bee
Can find a bed and room.
A health unto the happy,
A fig for him who frets;
It is not raining rain to me,
It's raining violets.

And speaking of violets, never have they been lovelier. Down by the wet weather branch where the green moss grows deep and soft, white violets have stems of great length; just right for weaving into wreaths for the head and ior hanging about one's neck. Little girls can spend happy hours picking and tenderly ar-comes the best time of all; learning to plait or teaching a friend how.

ranging the blooms, and then

When the stems are very long as they are this year it is no job at all to make a rope of violets five feet long, as thick as your middle finger, . . . that is if you are eight years old and have a slender finger like Rose, Jr.

I wish I could remember the things I thought about when I was eight years old. I well remember the violets and the green of the moss; I recall the sun as it dappled the ground and moss in gold coin dots and the singing of the birds as they flitted from tree to bush and down to flutter in the shallow depths of the wet weather branch that pulsed and ran free in early spring.

These things I well remember, but the things I dreamed about are not to be recalled. Did I too a far time away at eight, how dream of growing up . . . such quickly the years fly after the state of being grown is reached. Did I too dream and secretly wish to take over the kitchen for a whole day and serve a supper of nothing but pies, cakes and tarts, with crisp nut cookies for dessert, as my daughter says she thought about Saturday when she wove a violet chain, in a matter of three hours more or less.

Life on Shady Rest is moving along just right in the beautiful weather we are having. Tomato plants have been bedded dowu to grow a strong root system before being transplanted into the already prepared rows. One long row of flowers to cut for house use grows near the highway, to give pleasure to those passing.

Greens are pot liquor size, and already I am thinning the lettuce and pulling the green onions. Irish potatoes are richly green and sporting several bugs that came from goodness knows where.

Dale and Tim built a sixteen room martin house to help settle the dispute going on among the already settled martins who have lived in the gourds and other houses. They have been having a time keeping newcomers away from their selected home for the next few months. Before the new house had been up ten minutes we noticed a fight going on. Upon watching we discovered the old settlers moving over and trying to put to flight some just-moved - in - or - looking - around neighbors.

As I write this at eight a.m., I can see the new hotel high in the air with more than a dozen papa birds flying and swooping about. Tey walk up and down the two porches, go inside the small rooms, stick their heads out and admire the view; then take off into the blue yonder over the west forty to carry the news somewhere.

Spring in all its glory causes housework to be given a lick and promise, for where is there a housekeeper who can resist the lure of digging in the dirt . . . planting seeds of her choice or putting out plants grown by a florist. One friend of ours saves about half of his hot bed for strong sturdy marigolds and zinnias ready to move to the cold frame; when his flowering spring things are fading he moves these ready to grow plants into the beds and before many of us have plants finger high he is looking for blooms and finds them early too. Next year I am not going to fool with flats in the windows, but reserve a place for flower seeds in my hot bed.

With all the extra work spring brings, it behooves us not to forget our friends. Of course I realize a busy mother can't entertain with big suppers or Sunday dinners this month or next, but remember a luscious dessert, a cup of fine coffee and fellowship means a lot to keep the fires of friendship burning. When one has real friends guard them closely and remember them often.

Sometime I am set to pondering some of the friendships I have made over the period of years of my marriage. Many have grown and flourished like the

Cub, Scout, And Explorer Plan Programs

A series of three program planning meetings will be held at Camp Tiak during the first two weeks in May, according to President L. O. Crosby, Jr., of Picayune. Cub Scout, Boy Scout and Explorer Unit leaders have been asked to attend by the Vice-Presidents in charge.

Donald J. Gray of Laurel, Vice-President in charge of the Cub Scout phase, has set Friday, May 4, as the date for the session for leaders of boys 8, 9 and 10 years of age. A supper will be served the group beginning at 7:000 p.m. Plans for a pow wow, exposition or circus, summertime activities and the new Webelos Den will be considered. "A general discussion of the Cub Scout program will be held with a view of enriching the program during the year ahead," said Mr. Gray.

Edward A. Khayat of Moss Point, Vice-President for the Boy Scout program for bays 11, 12 and 13 years of age, has asked leaders to meet at Camp Tiak on Tuesday, May 8. Supper will be served at 7:00 o'clock. Stress will be placed on summer camp, the National Camping Award, and opportunity given for discussion on other activities as desired by the Scoutmasters.

Lester Clark of Hattiesburg, Vice-President for Exploring for boys 14 years of age and older will meet with Advisors and committeemen on Monday, May 14 at Camp Tiak. After a supper beginning at 7:00 o'clock, every every phase of the older boy program will be discussed. Philmont expeditions, the Keesler encampment, Canoe and hiking trips, use of President Crosby's camp at Cybur and other matters will be covered.

A feature of each of the three meetings will be a presentation on the "Onward for God and My Country" theme, to enable leaders to make the best use of its opportunities.

Results of all three meetings will guide the Council officials in preparing a complete Council and District program for the next year at the program planning meeting recently set for July 26. A printed calendar will be then made available for leaders along with the program notebook and

Veteran's Information

Governor Coleman has recently appointed two new members to the State Veterans Affairs Board. Chester H. Curtis of Clarksdale has been named to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Dr. E. LeRoy Wilkins and A. F. Summer of Jackson has been appointed to fill the unexpired term of Chancellor Arnold Pyle who has also resigned. Eeach of these two new Board members are attorneys with quite a bit of active duty in World War II.

Time Running Out—World War II Educational Benefits

At this time les sthan four months remain in which World War II veterans can complete their Educational Training under the original GI Bill.

Every affected WW II veteran should make an all-out effort to conclude his or her training before the dealine of July 25 1956. Even though a veteran may still have unused entitlement under Public Law 346, or even though he may be in the middle of a course, his GI Bill training benefits will conclude on July 25, 1956.

The only exceptions to this looming deadline are Korean veterans and those veterans who enlisted or reenlisted between October 6, 1945 and October 5, 1946. These latter veterans have nine years from the termination of their first enlistment or reenlistment in which to complete their Education or Training.

Photostats For GI Loans

A war veteran who applies for a GI loan but has lost his original discharge or separation papers may obtain a certificate of eligibility from the Veterans Administration by submitting a photostatic or certified copy of the discharge or separation document instead of the original. The VA is no longer insisting that the original document, or a certificate in lieu thereof, be produced.

The above-named substitute documents must be accompanied by a statement made and signed by the veteran to the effect that his original discharge or separation document issued to him for a specific period of military service has been lost or destroyed. A VA Form 4-1880, "Request for Determination of Eligibility," must also be executed by the veteran and filed with the VA.

The veteran may submit either:

a. Photostats made for him from the original documents.

b. Photostats or certifications made of a public record of a discharge.

c. An official copy of a separation document.

The above named substitute documents will not be accepted if the veteran's original discharge or separation papers are temporarily unavailable. Their loss to the veteran must be permanent.

Mr. Smith Mr. Swayze Mr. Sykes Mr. Walker Mr. Watkins Mr. Weems

The twelve men above have been named to head Mississippi Economic Council committees for the coming year. Their appointments are announced by Fred B. Smith of Ripley, new MEC president. He said some 500 members of the organization will serve on the committees.

With all the extra work spring brings, it behooves us not to forget our friends. Of course I realize a busy mother can't entertain with big suppers or Sunday dinners this month or next, but remember a luscious dessert, a cup of fine coffee and fellowship means a lot to keep the fires of friendship burning. When one has real friends guard them closely and remember them often.

Sometime I am set to pondering some of the friendships I have made over the period of years of my marriage. Many have grown and flourished like the green bay tree . . . others sprang up and were thrifty and green for several months . . . then allowed to wither and die. Sometime it was my fault, other times it was not. Some I have cared about and wondered long and many times . . . where did I fail and where is the flaw that made the person drop me like the proverbial hot potato. Did I talk too much, not giving them time to tell of their children. husbands and dull for them. Were the din- and clothes. Was my life too drab ners and parties I gave too country for them. Then I remember some who I didn't follow up too closely for various reasons and am comforted to realize that all people can't be friends in a close sense, for if that were true our lives would be stuffed to overflowing with friends.

Poor Joe! Right in the best time of the year, he is having to wear a cast on his left hand. Friday night in a practice football game, he got a chip broken off his thumb . . . the hand swelled and gave him much pain, hence the cast. Easter Sunday after he was dressed for church it was discovered his coat sleeve wouldn't go over the cast . . . so to church he went is shirt sleeves.

I was proud as punch of my daughter . . . so sweet in pink. A sheer pink dress with standout petticoats, a pink duster made with my own hands, and a sweet band of pink flowers for her curls. How her freckles stood out against the pink; how lovely the long limbed grace and beauty of a little girls who is eight, pretty as a picture and well loved by her family and friends. It is nice to have a daughter in the family, and sons, too.

not that he knows not, is a fool,

He who knows, and knows not

He who knows, and knows that he knows, is wise, follow him.

substitute copies of both sides of certificates in lieu of lost or destroyed discharge or other service certificates.

The armed services from which substitute documents are obtained ordinarily furnish only the information shown on the front of a discharge document unless the information appearing on the reverse thereof is specifically asked for.

Therefore a statement like the following should accompany the request for a replacement:

"In addition to the information shown on the face of my Discharge Certificate I am requesting a certificate furnishing a factual record of military service rendered, the quality and duration thereof, and the type of separation issued to me at time of discharge. This factual record is needed so that I may exercise my rights and privileges involving federal and state benefits."

The above statement should be included in the text of a letter sent to any of the services except the Army, which provides a special application form for use by Army veterans in requesting replacement documents. On this form, D. A. Form 214, "Application for Certificate in Lieu of Lost of Destroyed Discharge Certificate or Certificate of Service," the statement can be inserted under "Remarks" on the back of the form.

Free Copy of Discharge

Under a recent directive of the Department of Defense a veteran may now secure one free copy of his discharge or separation records. For the past year or so there has been a fee of $1.50 for this service. If more than one copy is requested the fee is required. Remember—only one free copy.

Copies of Discharge—Navy

after a request for such certificate will be made in letter form over the signature of the veteran concerned.

Such a letter will contain all essential information; name, service number, race, place and date of entrance into service, place and date of discharge, type of discharge, circumstances surrounding loss or destruction of certificate (to include date of such loss) place and date of birth, height, complexion, color of eyes, color of hair, and occupation before time of enlistment. The veteran will then certify that the statements which he has furnished are true to the best of his knowledge and belief. The letter will be addressed to: Chief of Naval Personnel, Attention: Enlisted Records Division, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

Class Q Allotments

To secure information as to allotments under Class Q, the following offices should be contacted:

AIR Force—Air Force Finance Center, 3800 York St., Denver, Colorado.

ARMY—Finance Center, U. S. Army, Indianapolis 49, Indiana.

NAVY—U. S. Navy Finance Center, Cleveland 14, Ohio.

GI Bill Expiration May Affect Loan Program in 1956

Due to the way in which the World War II GI Bill is written, it is perfectly possible that the VA may have to stop taking builder's applications for project Certificate of Reasonable Value commitments sometime this Fall unless Congress acts this Session to extend this program beyond its July 25, 1957, expiration date. At present, no such action is scheduled.

The law reads that no VA home loan may be guaranteed after July 25, 1957, which means that a new house must be planned, built, processed, sold, closed out and with all papers in the hands of the VA prior to the expiration date. To prevent a complete jam in VA offices and to properly account for the well known time-lag in residential construction, VA officials are now seriously considering how early in this year they must begin to taper off this program if this Congress doesn't act to extend it.

Despite definite policy positions in favor of an extension of the VA program adopted by all major veteran and industry groups, very little mail has been received in the Congress urging action to extend the program. Senator Sparkman introduced a 2-year extension bill last year and hearings may be held soon in the Senate Labor Committee (which handles veterans' legislation), but Chairman Olin Teague of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee has announced his opposition to any extension.

This expiration date of July 25, 1957 may seriously affect those World War II veterans who have not taken advantage of the Home oan Guaranty provisions of Public Law 346, or the original GI Bill. Very few Members of Congress appreciate how very important this program is to the economy of their home district and state. We would therefore suggest, if you believe this expiration date should be extended, that you immediately write to your Congressman and or to your Senators asking them to use their influence and vote for the extension of this program.

Please understand that Korean veterans are not affected by this expiration date, it applies only to World War II veterans.

Information On Social Security

Farm operators in this area will be interested in the amendments to the Social Security Act affecting them. Under the amendments, the self-employed farmer is cvoered by social security on the same basis as other self-employed persons, provided his net earnings from his farm operations amount to $400 or more per year. This new coverage of farm operators becomes effective January 1, 1955.

A special provision will greatly simplify the reporting problem for many small farm operators. This simplified reporting may be used only by farmers who report their income on a cash receipts and disbursements basis. A farmer in this category having gross income of not more than $1800 may take credit for 50% of such gross income rather than the actual net earnings if he elects to do so. Gross earnings of over $1800 with a net of less than $900 may, at the option of the farm operator, be reported as $900 for social security purposes.

Rent received in crop shares may not be included as self-employment income by the land owner. This is in accord with the general provision in the law excluding rentals from real estate unless received in the course of a trade or business by a real estate dealer.

Farm operators in this area will be pleased to learn that their Social Security reports for employees have been greatly simplified. Effective with January 1, 1955, the qualifying quarter and the 60-day rule are dropped as a requirement for farm workers.

The old provision was cumbersome and required the operator to keep track of the number of days a worker was employed in each quarter. Now any farm work who is paid $100.00 or more in cash wages per year by one employer is covered by social security after December 31, 1954, without respect to the number of days worked. This change will result in considerably more farm workers getting the advantage of coverage.

Rock 'N' Roll, the latest music to induce screaming mania in teen-agers and screaming meanies in adults, has invaded the country music territory.

That's what Si Siman says, and he ought to know. Not only does he produce the "Ozark Jubilee" hour-and-a-half of country music heard Saturday nights on ABC-TV, but he also owns the following Ozark enterprises:

Why Is A Camel Like A Savings Account?

Old Mr. Camel stores up food and water in his humps for the lean times ahead when he will have to cross the desert. And a savings account here does a similar job for you. It lets you put cash aside in "fat" times to tide over when times get lean. And, like a camel, your savings account can give you a mighty welcome ride when the going's rough and you need a lift most!

UNSEEN TRAGEDY!

HIDDEN IN THE GRASS out of sight from the casual eye are the future woods of America. Tiny trees—just seedlings hardly hand-high, but the timber of tomorrow.

That's why apparently harmless, slow-burning grass or brush fires are in reality as deadly as though they were burning the big trees. These "harmless" fires are forest fires, too. They destroy those tiny seedlings.

So for America, for your children, pledge yourself to be extra careful with matches, smokes, campfires—any fire. Make sure every spark is out—dead out! Remember those tiny trees hidden away in the grass, growing for tomorrow.

Remember—Only you can

PREVENT WOODS FIRES!
